1 BAGIOTTI, Tullio (Editor). Studi in onore di Marco Fanno. Essay in Honour of Marco Fanno. I: Ricerche di metodologia e di teoria economica. II: Investigations in Economic Theory and Methodology. Padova, Cedam, 1966.

Two volumes. Crown quarto. Pp. xlvii, 596; xliv, 782. Frontispiece portrait, protected by tissue guard, to the first volume. Tables, figures. Hardcover, uniformly bound in the original publisher's green leatherette, gilt printed spines, a touch of wear to spine ends. In fine condition.

First edition. Marco Fanno, 1878–1965. Was a professor at the University of Padua. In his writings he analyzed the proportions of factors of production and emphasized the relation between direct and capital goods in a given economic system. He was highly respected as a teacher. Among his books are "L'Espansione Commerciale e Coloniale Degli Stati Moderni" (1906); "Le Banche e il Mercato Monetario (1912); and "Principii di Scienza Economica" (1938).

2 BASTIAT, Frédéric. Cobden et la ligue ou l'agitation anglaise pour la liberté du commerce. Paris, Guillaumin, 1845.

Octavo. Pp. Half-title, title, xcvi, 426. Hardcover, contemporary quarter calf and attractive marbled boards, spine gilt ruled, with gilt morocco label, all edges sprinkled green. In about fine internal condition (light foxing to prelims), and just good binding (spine rubbed, small part missing at head; front inner hinge split but holding firmly; corner-tips bit rubbed, bumped; endpapers marked). A rather desirable copy with excellent interior, in handsome, though not perfect binding.

First edition of Claude Frédéric Bastiat's (1801–1850) first book. Bastiat, French writer and Gentleman farmer, a friend of Richard Cobden, has been called "the most ardent Continental exponent of economic liberalism." (Mai, p.16). "Political economy has been indebted to him, both during his short life and after it, for some of its worthiest followers." (Palgrave 1894– 1901). He was the "spokesman for the liberal, optimistic school of French economics." (Sills. IESS. 1972). A throat-and-lung disease forced this brilliant mind and excellent speaker to restrict himself to writing during the last six years of his life.

Kress C.6535. Goldsmith 34133. Einaudi 324. Italian translation, "Cobden e la Lega; ossia, L'agitazione inglese per la libertà del commercio" appeared in Napoli, in 1849. Scarce. Only one copy of this edition in French Union Catalog. Kvĸ lists National Library of Australia, British Union Catalog (2 copies), Union Catalog of Canada (2 copies), and Union Catalog Italy. Few copies are in microform. Further 3 copies are located in Germany (Union Catalogs Bavaria, Southwest Germany, Northern Germany). OCLC 4291767.

3 BASTIAT, Frédéric. Harmonies économiques. Paris, Guillaumin, 1850.

Octavo. Pp. Half-title, title (Errata on verso), 463, (1). Hardcover, contemporary half dark-green calf and matching foliage-patterned marbled boards, spine ruled and lettered in gilt, spine ends and corner-tips bit rubbed. All edges sprinkled green. In about fine internal condition, foxed but otherwise surprisingly well preserved. A very desirable copy.

First edition. "Harmonies économiques" was published posthumously, but few parts had already appeared as articles in 1848 and 1849.

Goldsmith 36728. Einaudi 325. Very scarce. Not a single copy of this edition on OCLC worldwide. (OCLC 309833 locates only the Bruxelles edition.) KVK locates only 9 copies of this edition; in British Library (2 copies), National Libraries of Sweden and France, Library Network of Western Switzerland, and Union Catalogs Italy, France, Southwest Germany and Northern Germany. Few copies are in microform.

4 BASTIAT, Frédéric. Harmonies économiques. Bruxelles, Meline, Cans et Compagnie, 1850.

Crown octavo. Pp. (ii) blank, half-title, title, 388. Hardcover, contemporary half calf and matching foliage-patterned marbled boards, spine gilt ruled, with gilt morocco label. All edges sprinkled. In about fine internal condition (a touch of foxing to prelims). Spine rubbed, mended, top part missing; corner-tips bit rubbed. A rather desirable copy with a brightly preserved interior, in a handsome, if faulty, binding.

First Belgian edition, published in the same year as the original French edition. English translation was published in 1860 by John Murray, London.

Einaudi 326 (listing the French edition). OCLC 309833.

8 BENTHAM, Jeremy. Edited by John Hill Burton.

Benthamiana: or, Select Extracts From the Works of Jeremy Bentham. With An Outline of His Opinions on the Principal Subjects Discussed in His Works. Edinburgh, William Tait; London, Simpkin, Marshall; Dublin, John Cumming, 1843.

Octavo. Pp. xxiii, (i) blank, 419, (1) blank. Plus lithograph frontispiece portrait, from an engraving made by C. Fox after H. W. Pickersgill, printed by the lithographer S. Leith of Edinburgh, with tissue-guard. Half-title present. Index. Hardcover, bound in the original publisher's cloth, both boards decoratively embossed, spine gilt, this restored, with light wear at ends, first inner hinge cracking but very firm. In about fine internal condition. A very bright, untrimmed interior.

First edition. Republished in 1844, and recently in 1998. Jeremy Bentham (1748–1832), English social philosopher whose influence on the development of economic thought and theory was very great. Burton was an Edinburgh lawyer and a professional writer for literary journals. He established his name as an author with the "Life and Correspondence of David Hume" (1846), in which he threw light for the first time on Hume as an economist. Before editing "Benthamiana" he played an important role in assisting Sir John Bowring in editing the works of Bentham. "The more the matter is investigated the clearer it becomes that Burton, not Bowring, was the effectively responsible editor." J. H. Burns, Emeritus Professor of History, University College London, in "Bentham and the Scots" (The Bentham Project, 2004). This edition remains much sought after. While OCLC 1866322 locates 50 copies worldwide, it lists (OCLC 9868685) over 60 others in microform only.

9 BÖHM-BAWERK, Eugen von. Kapital und Kapitalzins. Erste Abteilung: Geschichte und kritik der Kapitalzins-theorien. Zweite Abteilung: I. Positive Theorie des Kapitales. II: Exkurse zur Positiven Theorie des Kapitales. Dritte durchgesehene und vermehrte Auflage. Innsbruck, Wagner'schen Univeristäts-Buchhandlung, 1909–14.

Two volumes in three. Royal octavo. Pp. xxxv, 747; xxiii, 652; viii, 477, (2) publisher's catalogue. Serial- and volume title to first 2 volumes, only halftitle to the 3rd. Indices. Hardcover, uniformly bound in half green cloth and matching marbled boards, spines lettered and decorated in gilt. In about fine condition. Excellent set.

Third, best edition. In many respects the present edition represents the preferred "Kapital und Kapitalzins", being thoroughly revised, corrected and enlarged. Previous editions appeared unchanged, and the 4th edition, which was published in 1921, is merely a reprint, reset in smaller type. Eugen von Böhm-Bawerk (1851–1914), Austrian economist. Full professor at the age of 37, he alternated university teaching with government service; became three times finance minister.

Provenance: From the library of E. E. Harmsen, with his bookplate.

Kvĸ locates copies of this edition in Union Catalogue of Swedish Libraries, Union Catalog of Canada, and IDS Bale/Berne only. Just four copies are located in Germany (Complete Catalogue of Die Deutsche Bibliothek, Union Catalog Hesse, North Rhine-Westphalia, Bavaria). OCLC 17695772.

15 CAIRNES, J(ohn) E(lliot). Some Leading Principles of Political Economy Newly Expounded. London, Macmillan, 1874.

Three parts in one volume. Royal octavo. Pp. xix, 506, (4), 28, (4) publisher's catalogue and ads. Footnotes. Hardcover, original brown pebbled cloth, spine lettered and decorated in gilt, chalked forest-green endpapers; mark on upper board where abraded patch of cloth has been restored; spine ends bit bumped, an inner hinge partly lightly cracked. In a very good condition (some spots on prelims). Overall a nice, very clean copy in strong binding.

A first issue of the first edition. Later issues were published with an enlarged, 54-page publisher's catalogue. The present copy contains the original 28-page catalogue. The American edition was published only later that year (New York, Harper and Brothers).

John Elliot Cairnes (1824–1875), Irish economist. At the time of his death he was generally regarded as the leading British economist and the last defender of the classical school. "Some Leading Principles of Political Economy" is considered one of his most important writings.

16 CERNUSCHI, Henri. Le pair bimétallique. (Notes soumises à la Gold and Silver Commission). Paris, Guillaumin, 1887.

Octavo. Pp. 85. Printed on thick paper. In the original stiff printed wrappers, bit dust-soiled, thumbed; faint dampmark in lower margin. In a very good condition.

First edition. In the same year, an English translation, "The Bimetallic Par: Notes Submitted to the Gold and Silver Commission" was published in London by P. S. King; and a German translation, "Das bimetallische Pari. Der Gold- und Silver-Commission in London unterbreitete Bemerkungen" appeared in Köln by J. P. Bachem.

Henri Cernuschi (1821–1896), Italian politician and economist, best known for his publications on financial questions, more especially bimetallism. Of the latter he was an ardent champion, and the word itself is commonly supposed to have originated with him – at least in its English form it is first found in his "Silver Vindicated" (1876).

17 CERNUSCHI, Henri. M. Michel Chevalier et le bimétallisme. Articles publiés dans le Siècle en avril et mai 1876. Paris, Guillaumin, 1876.

Octavo. Pp. 135. Printed on thick paper. In the original stiff printed wrappers, bit thumbed, old decorative paper label on front; very small chip to blank lower corner of one leaf with no loss. In about fine condition. Overall an excellent copy.

First edition. Michel Chevalier (1806–1879) was French economist. In 1840 he was appointed professor of political economy at the Collège de France and subsequently became one of the most eminent economists of his time and a great influence on the economic policies of France. He negotiated and successfully concluded the French-English commercial agreement in 1860, followed by similar treaties with other countries. He predicted, as early as 1857, the decline in the value of gold.

Scarce. OCLC lists only 3 copies worldwide (University of Alberta, Cambridge University, Dibam Biblioteca Nacional de Chile). KVK lists copies in Union Catalog Italy, National Library of France, Union Catalog of Canada, British Union Catalog (4 copies), Library Network of Western Switzerland, Union Catalog Austria, and an incomplete copy in Union Catalog North Rhine-Westphalia.

18 CHANG, Pei-kang. Agriculture and Industrialization: The Adjustments That Take Place as an Agricultural Country Is Industrialized. Cambridge, Harvard University Press, 1949.

Royal octavo. Pp. xii, 270. Footnotes, bibliography, appendices, index. With 29 tables. Hardcover, original cherry cloth, spine gilt, with blurb from dust-jacket tipped-in onto first free endpaper. In fine condition (small ownership stamp). Excellent copy.

First edition. Professor Pei-kang Chang (1913), a pioneer of Development Economics. Obtained a B.A. in Economics from Wuhan University in 1934, and a Ph.D. in Economics from Harvard University in 1945. His doctoral dissertation "Agriculture and Industrialization" won the prestigious David A. Wells Prize as the best dissertation in economics for the year 1946–1947 at Harvard. Chang is now Honorary Dean of School of Economics and Director of Research Center for Economic Development in HUST and Honorary Chairman of China's Society for Study of Western Economic Doctrines.

Scarce. Very popular within the academia (OCLC 1360157 lists almost 200 major academic institutions worldwide, each holding a copy), "Agriculture and Industrialization" is exceedingly scarce elsewhere. OCLC 36177556 lists those institutions with only a Xerox photocopy in their library.

19 COSSA, Luigi. Histoire des doctrines économiques. Paris, Giard & Brière, 1899.

Two parts in one volume. Royal octavo. Paginated consecutively. Pp. xii, 124, (2), 127–574. Divisional title to each part. Bibliography, extended index of authors cited. Hardcover, contemporary half calf and marbled paper over boards, spine in compartments between gilt roll-tolled raised bands, direct gilt lettering; leather on spine rubbed, corner tips exposed. In a very fine internal condition (signature to title, small stamps to last free endpaper). Overall an excellent copy.

First French edition. A volume in the Bibliothèque Internationale d'Economie Politique Series, edited by Alfred Bonnet.

Luigi Cossa (1831–1896), Italian economist. Became a professor of political economy at the University of Pavia and was responsible for the revival of the scientific study of economy in Italy. He made Pavia the centre of economic research, and was the first modern Italian economist to gain international recognition. As a brilliant scholar and excellent teacher, Cossa exercised great influenced. His "Guida allo studio dell'economia politica" (1876) was a remarkable achievement for its time. It was translated into many languages and appeared in English under the title "Introduction to the Study of Political Economy" (1880). "Histoire des doctrines économiques" was translated from the revised manuscript of the 3d Italian edition (1892) "Introduzione allo studio dell'economia politica".

Scarce. KvK lists 9 copies only. Three other copies are in Germany (Union Catalogs Northern Germany, Bavaria, Southwest Germany). OCLC 4406724.

20 DENIS, Hector. L'impôt. Leçons données aux cours publics de la ville de Bruxelles. Première série. Bruxelles, Veuve Monnom, 1889.

Royal octavo. Pp. xiii, 309. Large folding graph bound in. Tables. Hardcover, contemporary calf, spine in compartments between raised bands, gilt lettering. Marbled sides, cloth corners, handsome marbled endpapers; first and last leaves bit foxed, old neat ownership signature. With a portrait of the author tipped-in onto title-leaf. In fine condition. An excellent copy.

First edition. Hector Denis (1842–1913), Belgian economist and philosopher. Was professor of ethics and political economy at the University of Brussels. Member of the Belgian Chamber of Representatives for 20 years. His work on the history of economic ideas was probably his most significant contribution. In his "L'impôt" he offered a public finance and taxation theory. Before this, in his "L'impôt sur la revenue" (1881) he provided interesting data on the collection of taxes. Wrote also "La dépression économique et sociale et l'histoire des prix" (1895); "Histoire des systèmes économiques et socialistes" (1897. Reprinted 1904, 1907).

Kvк locates just a single copy, that in Union Catalog Italy. OCLC 3636535.

21 DESTUTT DE TRACY, [Antoine Louis Claude, Comte]. Traité d'économie politique. Paris, Bouguet et Lévi, 1823.

Small octavo. Pp. 365 (i.e. 356). Page 356 incorrectly numbered 365. Halftitle present. Hardcover, handsomely bound in full brown-and-black patterned cloth, spine lettered. In fine condition (odd foxing spot, brown patch between 2 leaves where old newspaper clipping is inserted). An excellent copy.

First separate edition. Originally published in 1804 as part of "Eléments d'idéologie", the work was titled "Traité de la volonté". (Palgrave 1894–1901).

Antoine Louis Claude, Comte Destutt de Tracy (1754–1836), French senator, philosopher, and economist. An important intellectual leader during the time of Napoleon, he had been a member of the States-General (1789) and the Senate. Besides philosophical works influenced by Condillac, he wrote "Traité d'économie politique", his only major work on economics. Production meant for him a change in form or place. Value, he said, must be expressed in units of value, but he himself did not recommend a specific unit of measurement. (Mai, p. 70).

Thomas Jefferson made the American people acquainted with Destutt de Tracy's work through his translation of the unpublished French original. Revised and corrected by himself, it was published as "A Treatise on Political Economy" (Georgetown, Joseph Milligan, 1817).

Goldsmith 23731. Kress C.1051. Einaudi 1547. Very scarce. KvK locates just a single copy, that in British Library. Bodleian lists only a copy of the second, 1825 edition. OCLC 2842815.

23 DOUGLAS, Paul H., and Aaron Director. Preface by Frank Aydelotte. The Problem of Unemployment. New York, Macmillan, 1931.

Royal octavo. Pp. xix, 505. With 39 tables. Bibliographical note, footnotes, index. Hardcover, original blue cloth, gilt; prelims faintly browned. In about fine condition. With a lovely, hand-printed wood- or linoleum-cut bookplate to front free endpaper. An excellent copy.

First edition. A second edition was published in 1934, and a reprint, by Arno Press, in 1976. Aaron Director was a distinguished University of Chicago economist. He greatly influenced the modern course of economics and legal thought through his founding of the field of Law and Economics and his mentoring of generations of scholars. He died in 2004 at the age of 102.

Paul Howard Douglas (1892–1976), was a prominent Quaker and Unitarian United States Senator and economist.

Having a tremendous popularity within the academia (OLIS 300725 lists 375 major institutional libraries who hold the book), "The Problem of Unemployment" is exceedingly scarce elsewhere.

31 ESPINAS, Alfred. Étude sociologique: Les origines de la technologie. Paris, Ancienne librairie Germer Baillière; Félix Alcan, 1897.

Octavo. Pp. 295. Footnotes. Hardcover, half cloth and marbled boards, paper label (faded) to spine, marbled edges; underlining in faint coloured pencil, inscriptions to first leaves. In about fine condition.

First edition. "This early work by Espinas on primitive invention (technology), a work not sufficiently appreciated in Englishspeaking countries, traced the origin and development of practical discovery and invention, emphasising the social and religious motives in the practical life of early societies. This direction has been pursued by the later French investigators, who have formulated the principle of 'collective representation' ('représentation collective'). According to this principle, primitive life is dominated by a body of essentially collective thought, usage, and authority, which replaces the individual types of thought and association reached by the analysis of the British school." – James Mark Baldwin, "History of Psychology: A Sketch and an Interpretation" (1913). Espinas wrote also "Histoire des doctrines économiques" (Paris, 1891).

Very scarce. OCLC lists only 3 copies worldwide, at Stanford University Library and l'University Charles de Gaulle (2 copies). Кvк adds 2 copies (British Library, and Library Network of Western Switzerland).

32 FISHER, Irving. Assisted by Hans R. L. Cohrssen. Stable Money: A History of the Movement. New York, Adelphi, 1934.

Five parts in one volume. Royal octavo. Pp. xvi, 392. Divisional title to each part. With full-page illustrations, some in colour, and text illustrations, tables. Index, publisher's catalogue. Set in Gothic type. Bound in later stiff wrappers with flaps, typed title-labels to cover and spine. In about fine condition (light coloured pencil annotation to 2–3 pages). Excellent copy. Fourth edition. Published originally as two separate works, part I, II, III, and IV under the title "Die Verwirklichung des Rechtes auf den vollen Arbeitsertrag …" (1906); and part V under the title "Die neue Lehre vom Geld und Zins …" (1911). It appeared later as second edition in one volume with the title "Die natürliche Wirtschaftsordnung". English version, "The Natural Economic Order" translated from the 6th German edition by Philip Pye, appeared in 1929.

Silvio Gesell (1862–1930), German businessman. Born in Belgium, Gesell emigrated to Buenos Aires, where he successfully engaged in business. In 1914 he returned to Germany and became, five years later, finance minister in the shortlived government of Bavaria. His ideas in "Die natürliche Wirtschaftsordnung" are a reaction against Marxian socialism. Keynes, in his "General Theory", gives much space to the book, and expresses his belief that the future would learn more from the spirit of Gesell than from that of Marx. (Mai, P. 95).

Royal octavo. Pp. xi, (i), 477. Untrimmed, bound in the original publisher's printed brown wrappers, lettered and decorated in black, this repeated on title-page, publisher's ads printed inside wraps, a catalogue on back cover. Interior in bright, fine condition (small shelf number inscribed on title). Wraps are well preserved, with minute chip to one corner, minor age blemishes. Overall an excellent copy.

First edition. With the wording "Separatabdruck aus den Marx-Studien, III. Band" printed on upper wrap, not repeated on title-page.

Rudolf Hilferding (1877–1943), German socialist. Born in Vienna, received an M.D. from the University of Vienna and practised as doctor. Later, became editor of "Vorwärt", the German Socialist party daily. Was twice finance minister in the Weimar Republic. When Hitler came to power, Hilferding thought refuge in Switzerland and France. He was arrested by the French police and handed over to the Nazis. He ended his life immediately. Though he was deprived of success in most of his practical endeavours, Hilferding was a brilliant man of great vision and optimism. He has been called the ablest of the Marxian economists. Most of his economic writings, though, are in journals only and "Das Finanzkapital" is the only book which represents so well his ideas. The book is a classic of Marxist economics; Bukharin and Lenin were both influenced by his analysis of imperialism.

"During the last generation, American readers of German appear to have relied, as a rule, for information about early phases of German economic thought, chiefly upon two writers, Kautz ("Die Geschichtliche Entwickelung der National-Oekonomik und ihrer Literatur") and Roscher. Of Kautz, it is enough to say that he was of the rear guard of the rhetoricians. His book is wonderfully plausible, if not lucid reading. Its early pages appear to express methodological conclusions which the maturest scholarship has not superseded." – Albion W. Small, "The Cameralists: The Pioneers of German Social Polity" (1909).

Crown octavo. Pp. ix, (i), 269. Appendices. Set in Gothic type. Untrimmed copy in the original printed wrappers; upper wrap chipped, worn, leaves loose, some underlining in very light coloured pencil. Good copy.

First edition. Copies in the original state and in the original publisher's binding, as the copy presented here, are most uncommon.

Franz Hermann Schulze-Delitzsch (1808–1883), was a German jurist, member of the Prussian National Assembly, Chamber of Deputies, and the German Reichstag. He advocated freetrade, unrestricted competition, and self-help rather than state-help. In 1863 he wrote "Capitel zu einem deutschen Arbeiterkatechismus", borrowing his fundamental principles in the main from Bastiat. Ferdinand Lassalle (1825–1864), a German socialist, was the architect of the German labour movement and founder the German Workers' Association. He was the first to speak about "the iron law of wages", defining it as the minimum subsistence pay permitting survival and the raising of children. But the more his revolutionary hopes were disappointed, the more sharply he turned against the middle classes (and Schulze's theories), whose capacity to solve the social question he denied. "Herr Bastiat- Schulze" was Lassalle's rather assailing reply to Schulze's "Capitel ... "

Lassalle was mortally wounded in a duel fought over a lady he intended to marry. In 1866, only after Lassalle's death, Schulze finally answered with his "Die Abschaffung des geschäftlichen Risico durch Herrn Lassalle. Ein neues Kapitel zum 'Deutschen Arbeiterkatechismus'" (see here).

65 MACLEOD, Henry Dunning. The History of Economics. London, Bliss, Sands and Co., 1896.

Two books in one volume. Royal octavo. Paginated consecutively. Pp. xv, 168; 169–690, (8) publisher's catalogue. Hardcover, in the original publisher's burgundy cloth, spine gilt. Forest-green chalked endpapers. In overall fine condition. Excellent copy, practically unused, still entirely unopened.

First edition. The American edition appeared later the same year. Two books in one volume. Book I: On the Nature and History of Economics; Book II: The Fundamental Concepts and Axioms of Economics. Book II is arranged alphabetically under subjects.

Henry Dunning MacLeod (1821–1902), Scottish banker. Studied mathematics at Trinity College, later became a lawyer and established the first poor-law union in Scotland. He was appointed director of the Royal British Bank in 1854. In 1855 he published "The Theory and Practice of Banking" which was widely read and went through five editions. He was the first to describe in detail how bank credit is created. He made important contributions to the history of economics, wrote on money and banking, and contributed to the first systematic theory of credit. (Schumpeter 1963. p. 1115). His work, though, found greater acceptance on the Continent than at home. "The History of Economics" is MacLeod's last major work.

66 MACLEOD, Henry Dunning. The Theory of Credit. Volume I and Volume II, Part II. London, Longmans, Green, 1889–91.

Two volumes (of 3). Royal octavo. Pp. xii, 336; xxxx, 519–890, 24 publisher's catalogue. Hardcover, half cloth and marbled boards (volume I), full cloth (volume II). Spine labels, one printed, bit chipped; one inked; old institutional stamp and markings to volume I. Overall in about fine condition.

First edition. Volume I and Volume II, Part II (of 2) only. "In the first volume I gave a complete exposition of the fundamental concepts of credit ..." writes MacLeod. " In volume II, part I, I showed the practical application of these principles in banking and the foreign exchanges. In the concluding part I have given a concise sketch of banking in England, Scotland and Ireland."

Among the subscribers to this work were the German Emperor, the King of the Belgians, and the King of Siam (with 3 copies).

67 [MARCET, Mrs. Jane]. Entretiens sur l'économie politique, ou, éléments d'économie politique, dégagée de ses abstractions, d'apres Adam Smith, Say, Malthus, Mill, etc. Paris, Boulland, 1825.

Small octavo. Pp. 452, no half-title. Index, bibliography. Hardcover, contemporary quarter green calf and matching marbled paper over boards, spine gilt, handsome marbled endpapers, small ex-libris label, all edges marbled; spine worn at extremities, inner first hinge cracked. With a nice school prize plate, dated 1849, onto first paste-down. In fine internal condition (occasional light foxing).

First French edition. First published in English as "Conversations on Political Economy" (1816). Mrs. Jane Haldimand Marcet (1769–1858), English writer. She wrote about political economy in the form of tales easily understood by housewives. (Mai, p. 148). Her "Conversations" was a great success and went through 7 editions. It was "the best introduction to the science that has yet appeared." (McCulloch, Literature of Political Economy). She also published "John Hopkins' Notions on Political Economy" (1833), "Rich and Poor" (1851), and books on chemistry and philosophy.

68 MILL, James. Elements of Political Economy. Second Edition, Revised and Corrected. London, Baldwin, Cradock, and Joy, 1824.

Octavo. Pp. viii, 299, (1) publisher's ad of "The History of British India". Hardcover, contemporary full smooth calf, rebacked with handsome mottled calf, new endpapers, all edges sprinkled; leather slightly rubbed at extremities. The 3 points in the Errata have been corrected in minute, very handsome contemporary hand in the appropriate places, of which two are on the same page. In overall fine condition. An excellent copy, with surprisingly bright interior, in handsome binding.

Second, revised and corrected edition, by the "Author of The History of British India", an attribution which was removed in later editions. James Mill (1773–1836), British historian, philosopher, and economist. The first edition of "Elements of Political Economy", "Mill's masterpiece", appeared in 1821. According to his son, John Stuart Mill, it originated in 1819 in instructions given to him by his father during their daily walks. The abstracts of these lessons, prepared by the son, served the father as notes from which to write his book. The work is considered as a summary representation of contemporary theories, in particular those of Malthus and Ricardo. It is said that Mill's principal services to political economy were indirect, among them to have been the father and the teacher of J. S. Mill. Several of the major alterations in Mill's work were founded on criticisms made by his son. (Palgrave 1894–1901).

72 MOLINARI, Gustave de. La morale économique. Paris, Guillaumin, 1888.

Royal octavo. Pp. Half-title, list of works by the same author on verso, xi, 442. Hardcover, contemporary quarter calf over marbled boards, cloth corners, spine in compartments between raised bands, two direct gilt labels. Decorative endpapers, cloth inner hinges, sprinkled edges. In about fine condition, foxed. Else, an excellent copy.

First edition. Gustave de Molinari (1819–1912), French journalist and economist. Born in Liège, was professor in Brussels and Antwerp. Was editor of the French "Journal des debats" and "Journal des économistes". He was a determined advocate of free trade liberalism and opponent of socialism. Wrote also "L'organisation de la liberté industrielle" (1846); "L'economie de l'histoire, théorie du progrès" (1908); and "Notice sur Joseph Garnier" (1881).

75 NECKER, (Jacques). De l'administration des finances de la France. Volumes I-III. (Paris), n.p., 1784.

Three volumes. Octavo. Pp. Half-title (verso blank), title (verso blank), (ii numbered v-vi) Table des chapitres, clix, (i) blank, 352 [with section 65–112 bound within the introduction]. Plus 2 tables printed on a single folding sheet; half-title (verso blank), title (verso blank), (ii numbered v-vi) Table des chapitres, 536; half-title (verso blank), title (verso blank), (iv) Table des chapitres, 468. Volume II contains the 4-page Supplément. Head- and tail-pieces. Printer's device to each title. Hardcover, uniformly bound in contemporary full mottled calf, gilt decorated spines in compartments between raised bands, with 2 matching gilt morocco labels to each, boards' edge rolled in gilt, marbled endpapers, all edges red, green ribbon markers; some wear and loss to spine ends and corners, worm trace at foot of one spine, small other blemishes to leather, blank corner of one introductory leaf chipped with no loss, edges bit thumbed. In a very fine internal condition, overall very good exterior. A very desirable set.

First edition, corrected. This work again strengthened Necker's (1732–1804) popularity. It contributed to his return as directeur-général des finances in 1788, after his dismissal in 1781. It is a valuable book "to those who would study how the finances of France were managed in the last days of the old regime." (Palgrave 1894–1901). "The work was extremely popular (it is said to have sold 80.000 copies, despite being in three volumes) and served to promote the author's reputation." (Carpenter, Economic bestsellers, p. 23).

77 PARETO, Vilfredo. Trattato di sociologia generale. Volumes I-III. Firenze, Barbèra, 1923.

Three volumes. Crown quarto. Pp. cxvii, 431; 540; 673. Frontispiece portrait in the 1st volume. Footnotes, diagrams. Hardcover, uniformly bound in contemporary half vellum, decorative paper covered boards, each spine with 2 leather labels (bit rubbed), gilt ruled and lettered. Top edge red. In a very fine condition. Excellent, very handsome set.

Second edition. Vilfredo Pareto (1848–1923) was an Italian economist and sociologist. "Realizing that there existed many concrete problems that could not be solved by economics, (...) Pareto turned to sociology, publishing in 1916 what he considered his greatest work, 'Trattato'. (...) he inquired into the nature and basis of individual and social action, the methodology of economics and sociology, and the degree to which physical-science methods are applicable in the study of man's behaviour. He distinguished ideal or social ends from the individual wants of economics, thereby contributing importantly to the analysis of 'welfare'." (Encyclopedia Britannica 1973).

Provenance: The Henry Ludwell Moore's copy, authenticated by his ink signature "Henry Ludwell Moore, Cornwall, New York" at head of title-page of each volume. All three volumes with his extensive, characteristic, very neat pencil marginal annotations in English, French, Italian. Custom bound, the foot of each spine has been personalized by adding Moore's' name beautifully calligraphed in Gothic type in black ink by professional hand.

Moore (1869–1958) was an American economist known for his pioneering work in econometrics, a professor at Smith College and later at Columbia University. Considered the only American (and perhaps the only English-speaking) member of the original Lausanne School. With his contemporaries, Wesley Mitchell and Irving Fisher, Moore pioneered new kinds of quantitative economics in the United States. Unlike them, Moore was not a great public figure. He was a private, sensitive person who suffered from long periods of illness. The Moore Collection on Economics and Econometrics at the Columbia University Rare Book & Manuscript Library consists of large number of manuscripts, notebooks, typescripts, and correspondence (until 1940), dealing largely with general economic theory, econometrics, and sociology. This collection is accompanied by Moore's library of books, pamphlets, and journals, many of them annotated. The other part of Moore's library was acquired by the well-known collector Abraham C. Myrick of Columbia, whose ink signature "Abraham C. Myrick" and ink stamp: "From The Private Library of Abraham C. Myrick" are repeated on endpapers and title-page of each volume in the present set. With his decorative bookplate "Columbia, Ex Libris Abraham C. Myrick, 1963" in each volume. A very fine set with excellent provenance.

First edition. Charles Périn (1815–1905) was a professor of public law and political economy at the Catholic University of Louvain. A "utopian socialist", he belonged to the "French Liberal School", the 19th Century French economists which followed the tradition, both in politics and economics, set by the theorist Jean-Baptiste Say. In his "Les doctrines" Périn criticizes Bastiat's ideas. Unlike Bastiat, Périn adopted the labour theory of value. Since the return to land was not a return to labour, he maintained that rents sanction an injustice. Périn's criticisms of Bastiat brought to light the logical link between the labour theory of value and the demands of social justice. Following Périn's "Les économistes, les socialistes et le christianisme" (1849), many social Catholics raised the issue of social justice.

Hardcover, bound in the original publisher's olive-green cloth, spine bit darkened with light wear to ends, gilt lettering, all edges nicely marbled; front paste-down bit marked. In a very good condition indeed. Nice copy.

Second edition. First published in 1849.

Pierre Joseph Proudhon (1809–1865), French anarchist and socialist writer. His doctrine "Property is theft" is self-explanatory. One of Marx's earlier publications, "Misère de la philosophie" (1847), was an angry polemic against Proudhon's "Philosophie de la misère". Proudhon hoped to eliminate private enterprise through the establishment of a bank that would grant loans to cooperatives of workers. This, in his opinion, would bring justice and equality. Such cooperatives would make any form of government unnecessary and the ideal conditions of anarchy would reign.

Proudhon was imprisoned twice. He then left to Belgium, returning to Paris only after amnesty was granted in 1860. "Les confessions d'un révolutionnaire" is "considered to be his best work from the purely literary point of view, and was both a commercial success and a 'success d'éstime'." (E. Hyams: "Pierre-Joseph Proudhon").

Hardcover, contemporary quarter cloth and marbled paper over boards, paper label to spine; small chip to paper on upper board, corner of first free endpaper finger-soiled. In fine condition (stamp to title). Overall an excellent copy.

First edition. A very scarce copy of Schulze-Delitzsch's attack on Lassalle's "Herr Bastiat-Schulze von Delitzsch, der ökonomische Julian, oder: Capital und Arbeit" (1864) (see here). Franz Hermann Schulze-Delitzsch (1808–1883) was a German jurist, member of the Prussian National Assembly, Chamber of Deputies, and the German Reichstag. He advocated free-trade, unrestricted competition, and self-help rather than state-help. In 1863 he wrote "Capitel zu einem deutschen Arbeiterkatechismus", borrowing his fundamental principles in the main from Bastiat. Ferdinand Lassalle (1825–1864), a German socialist, was the architect of the German labour movement and founder the German Workers' Association. He was the first to speak about "the iron law of wages", defining it as the minimum subsistence pay permitting survival and the raising of children. But the more his revolutionary hopes were disappointed, the more sharply he turned against the middle classes (and Schulze's theories), whose capacity to solve the social question he denied. "Herr Bastiat-Schulze" was his rather assailing reaction to Schulze's book.

In 1866, only after Lassalle's death (he was mortally wounded in a duel fought over a lady he intended to marry), Schulze finally answered with his "Die Abschaffung".

94 SCHUMPETER, Joseph. Theorie der wirtschaftlichen Entwicklung. Eine Untersuchung über Unternehmergewinn, Kapital, Kredit, Zins und den Konjunkturzyklus. Zweite, neubearbeitete Auflage. München & Leipzig, Duncker & Humblot, 1926.

Royal octavo. Pp. xiv, 369, (3) publisher's ads. Half-title present. Hardcover, bound in the original publisher's brown cloth, upper cover lettered in gilt, with handsome publisher's device embossed in gilt, spine with blue dye label, gilt, top-edge dyed; light foxing to fore-edge and to first and last 2–3 leaves. In about fine condition (some pencil underlining in the beginning). Overall an excellent copy.

Second, revised edition. Best edition of Schumpeter's important work, outstanding among his many publications. The work's subtitle first appeared with this edition. Preface dated Bohn am Rhein, October 1926. (See: E. B. Schumpeter: "Bibliography of Schumpeter's Writings", 1950).

The book was translated into many languages. The English edition, "The theory of economic development: an inquiry into profits, capital, credit, interest, and the business cycle" appeared in 1934.

Joseph Alois Schumpeter (1883–1950) was not only versed in all fields of economic theory, but also in mathematics, social philosophy, statistics, and in the practical problems of the time.

Uncommon in the original publisher cloth.

98 SMITH, Adam. [Germain Garnier]. Recherches sur la nature et les causes de la richesse des nations; traduction nouvelle, avec des notes et observations par Germain Garnier. Volumes I-V. Paris, Agasse, 1802.

Five volumes. Crown octavo. Pp. cxxvij (Preface), 368; 493; 564; 556; 588. Engraved frontispiece, signed by B. L. Prevost, to the first volume. All half-titles present. Extended comprehensive index, footnotes. Hardcover, uniformly bound in contemporary half polished calf and speckled boards; spines gilt ruled, each with a cherry-red, gilt morocco title-labe and an oval, gilt-and-black morocco volume-number label, set within gilt-embossed wreath. Paper over inner hinges of volume I split, not affecting binding which remains firm and tight. Nice embroidered ribbon marker to each volume. In about fine condition (some annotations in light coloured pencil in one volume). A very handsome set.

Adam Smith's (1723–1790) work is the first major expression of organized study of social wealth. "The Wealth of Nations' is not a system, but as a provisional analysis it is completely convincing. The certainty of its criticism and its grasp of human nature have made it the first and greatest classic of modern economic thought." (PMM 221). The present, much admired French translation of Smith's "Wealth of Nations", by the French poet and economist Comte Germain Garnier (1754–1821), became the standard, definitive French text. (Palgrave 1894–1901). Garnier's elegant Preface to this edition contains a summary of the doctrine of Smith, a comparison between the same and that of French economists, and a parallel between the wealth of France and that of England.

The present set is the scarce corrected issue, published without the 5 errata slips (one to each volume) and conforms to Einaudi's 5340 description.

Scarce. KvK locates copies in British Library, Union Catalog of Canada, and National Library of Australia only. Two further copies are located in Germany (Union Catalogs Northern Germany and North Rhine-Westphalia). Some sets are incomplete; the edition is either not identified or is of the uncorrected issue, with the 5 errata slips present. A number of copies are in microform. OCLC 2783852. 100 SOMBART, Werner. Der moderne Kapitalismus. Erster Band: Die Genesis des Kapitalismus. Zweiter Band: Die Theorie der kapitalistischen Entwicklung. Mit Registern über Band I und II. Leipzig, Duncker & Humblot, 1902.

Five books in two volumes. Royal octavo. Pp. xxxiv, 669; viii, 646, (2) publisher's ads. With a divisional title to each book. Indices. Hardcover, uniformly bound in contemporary half calf, dark olive-green pebbled cloth, spines gilt, top of one spine missing, decorative endpapers, cloth inner hinges, marbled edges; leather rubbed off. In a very fine internal condition. A desirable set.

First edition of Sombart's most important work. Werner Sombart (1863–1941), German economist. A specialist in Marxian socialism he was not a socialist himself but expressed radical views in many of his books. In "Der moderne Kapitalismus" Sombart offered a systematic historical picture of economic development in Europe from the beginning to 1927. (Sills. IESS. 1972; Schumpeter 1963, p. 816–7).

"A history of the economic institutions of modern Europe: An introduction of Der moderne Kapitalismus of Werner Sombart" was published first in 1933 and later in 1935 by F. S. Crofts, New York.

Provenance: From the library of noted Dutch pediatrician Ph. H. Fiedeldij Dop, with his handsome bookplate to first free endpaper of each volume.

101 SPENCER, Herbert. An Autobiography. Volumes I-II. London, Williams & Norgate, 1904.

Two volumes. Royal octavo. Pp. xii, 556; ix, 541. Fine brown-ink aquatint photogravure (heliogravure) frontispiece portrait to each volume, with tissue-guards. Plus additional plates, some double-page, some extending, printed on different paper, bound-in. Text illustrations. Appendices, indices. Hardcover, uniformly bound in original forest-green cloth, spines gilt. Top edge gilt. Some leaves still unopened. In a very good condition (some spotting, particularly to first and last leaves and to fore-edges). A nice set, practically unused.

First edition. Herbert Spencer (1820–1903). British philosopher and sociologist, Spencer was a major figure in the intellectual life of the Victorian era. He was one of the principal proponents of evolutionary theory in the mid 19th century, and his reputation at the time rivalled that of Charles Darwin. Spencer was initially best known for developing and applying evolutionary theory to philosophy, psychology and the study of society. Today, however, he is usually remembered in philosophical circles for his political thought, primarily for his defence of natural rights and for criticisms of utilitarian positivism.

Octavo. Pp. 272. Notes, index. Hardcover, contemporary full calf, chafed, joints split but firm, lower corner of last blank torn-off. A very good copy in generally fine internal condition, evenly age toned.

First American edition. It was first published in London in 1802 as "An Enquiry into the Nature and Effects of the Paper Credit of Great Britain and Serious Reflections on Paper Money in General". Henry Thornton (1760–1815), English merchant and banker. Was director of the Bank of England, and for 30 years member of Parliament. In his "Enquiry..." he systemized ideas on money, circulation, interest, price, and employment. Though very successful in his own day, the "Enquiry..." was gradually forgotten until Hollander, Viner, and others rediscovered it and drew attention to its anticipations of modern monetary theory. (Blaug and Sturges, 1983).

Old catalogue entry tipped-in onto first paste-down, another loosely inserted. With previous ownership signature, dated 1809, calligraphed onto first free endpaper and title.
